

Table of Contents

Introduction	5
How to Use the Workbook	7
The Foundation
Session One: Inner Torah and Our Inner Worlds	12
Session Two: Why Relate to the Past?	19
Session Three: Taking Responsibility - Internalizing	25
Session Four: Experiencing Our Lives as Holy Text	30
Session Five: Stretching - Holding the Tension of Opposites	38
The Basic Inner Torah Process
Session Six: Relating to Yourself - Peshat (Naming)	44
Session Seven: Relating to Yourself - Remez (Exploring) Finding Your Younger, Vulnerable Self	51
Session Eight: Connecting with Your Adult Self - Remez Continued	61
Session Nine: Bringing Your Adult and Younger, Vulnerable Selves Together Possibility of Resistance from the Adult	69
Session Ten: Bringing Your Adult and Younger, Vulnerable Selves Together Possibility of Resistance from a Younger, Vulnerable Self	78
Session Eleven: Building Relationship between Your Adult and Younger, Vulnerable Selves	88

Session Twelve:	Encouraging Response from the Younger, Vulnerable Self	99
Session Thirteen:	Continuing the Inner Torah Process “That Was Then and This Is Now”	107
Session Fourteen:	Using Inner Torah in the Moment More About “That Was Then and This Is Now”	118

Strengthening the Adult Self’s Ability to Help the Younger, Vulnerable Self

Session Fifteen:	Identifying Missing Skills	128
Session Sixteen:	Learning to Grieve	145
Session Seventeen:	The Language of Touch	162
Session Eighteen:	Quick Review of Key Elements in the Inner Torah Process	170

Appendices

Appendix One:	Basic Inner Torah Vocabulary	178
Appendix Two:	Feeling Words	180
Appendix Three:	Skills the Adult Self May Need to Learn	186
Appendix Four:	Worksheet from Practical Inner Torah	188